Dear Friends,

I don't enjoy being the purveyor of doom and gloom but world developments have made that harder not to do lately. Those who know me and my work know that I always try to accentuate the positive even in deeply negative times - finding the silver lining, the green shoot, the glass half full or perhaps the slivers of blue sky.

So, although we are traversing difficult times globally (or maybe because of it), let me share several new resources that may help you navigate in these tough times with tools, ideas and examples of how to do ESGT governance, strategy, and risk and opportunity management "better".

- My July 21st article on "ESG Plus T: Tech as ESG Issue, Risk & Value Influencer" for Diplomatic Courier is a first in a multi-part series I am writing on the intersection of tech and ESG with a special focus on value protection and creation
- A July 20th article for the World Economic Forum on "Building a Cyber Resilience Strategy for a Geopolitically Unstable World" co-written with my friend and colleague Tomer Saban, CEO of Wirex Systems, offering a big picture cyber resilience strategy
- The video of my ESGT Megatrends 2022-2023 interactive speech for The Institute for Corporate Directors Malaysia \(ICDM\) in late June. Watch the Video here
- The video of the exceptional Center for International Private Enterprise panel I participated in at the World Justice Project in June focused on "Democracy Dividends of ESG Investing". Watch it here.
- An interview with Wartsila for this excellent article by one of their writers on "How can Corporations Help Alleviate Short-Term Societal Risks?"

Stay well, stay safe, stay positive and make a difference for the better in this tough moment. Until our next encounter!

How can corporations help alleviate short-term societal risks?

From infectious diseases to livelihood crises, societal risks account for some of the world's most pressing short-term concerns according to the World Economic Forum's Global Risks Report. Can corporations help ease the burden?

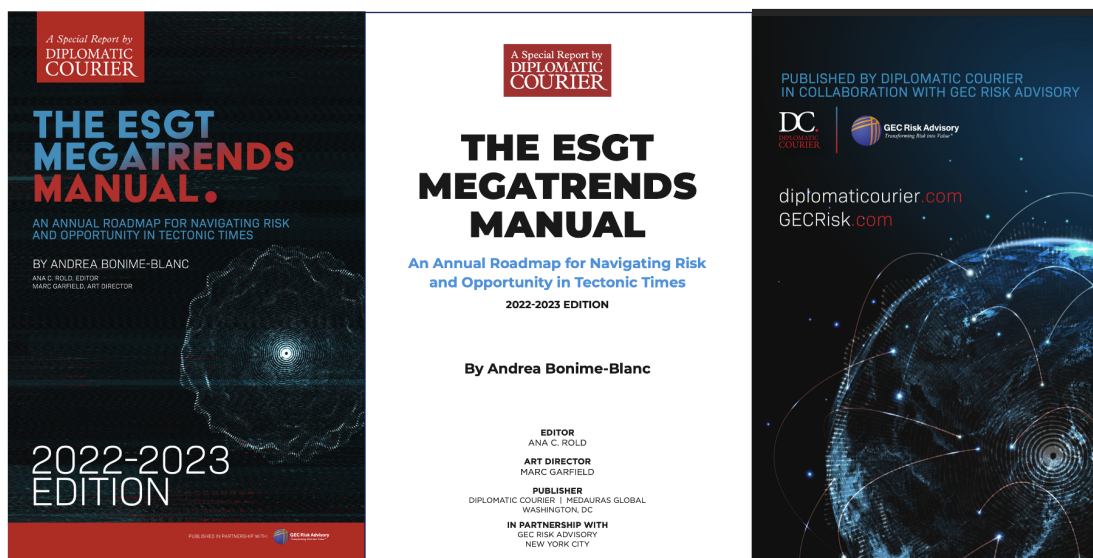

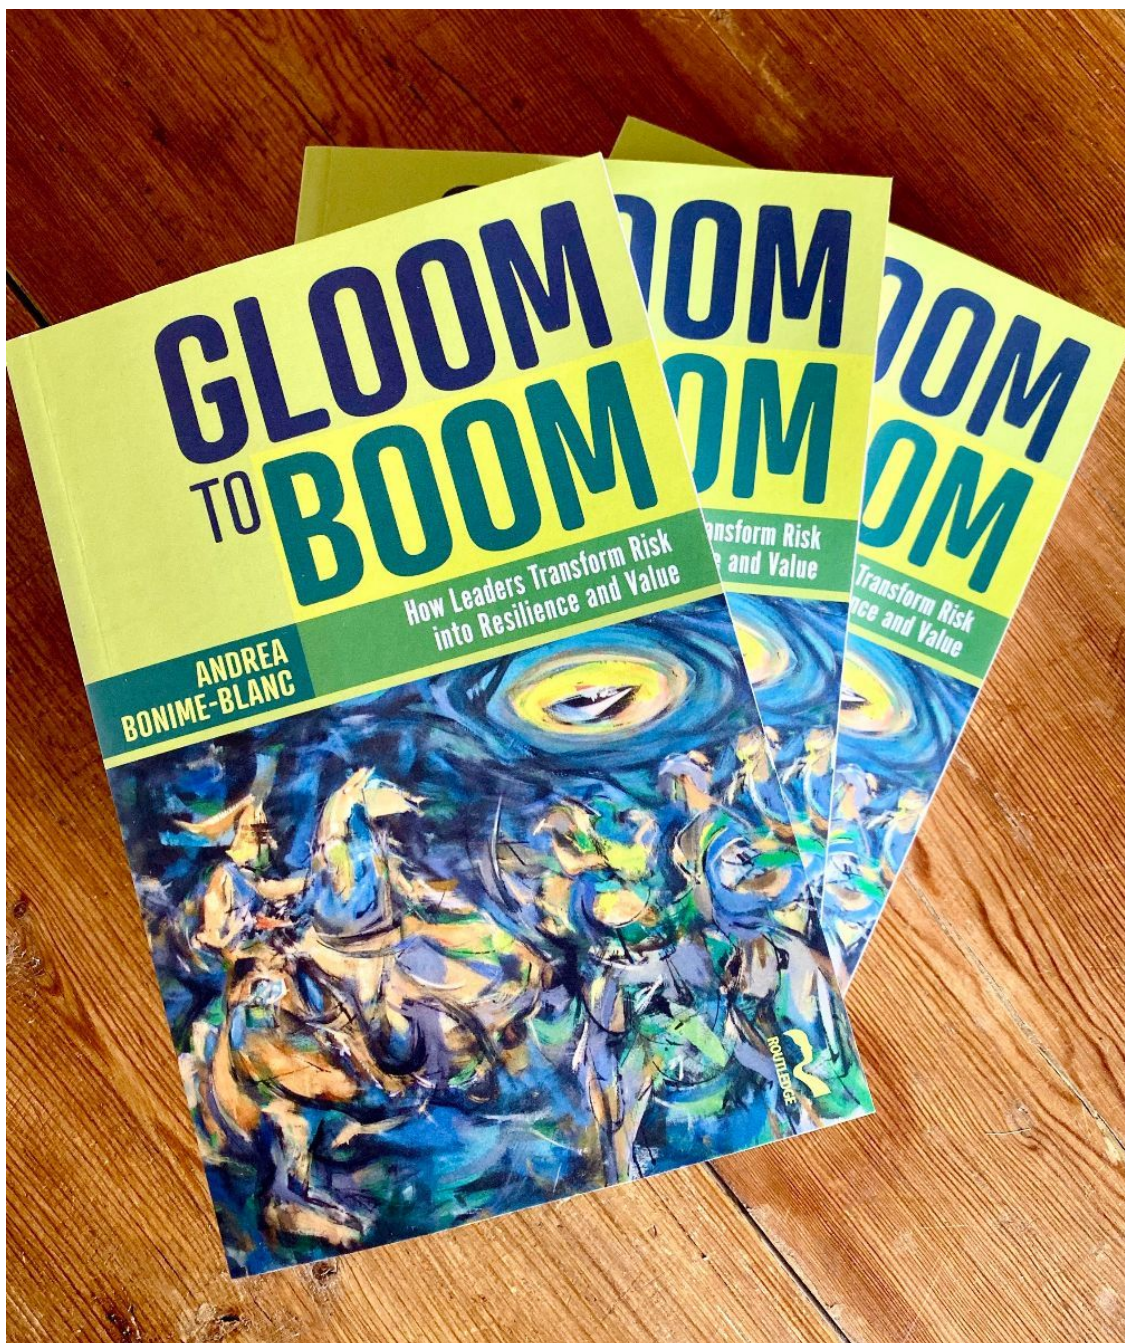

We are entering a new era of greater government and corporate collaboration to deal with material, pervasive, seriously damaging and potentially existential risks.
