Generative AI...Everything, Everywhere...

(c) Andrea Bonime-Blanc. 2023.

Hello Friends,

Wow - October sure was a whirlwind best summarized by this edition's subtitle:

"Generative AI - Everything, Everywhere...."

You know the rest.

So let me share a few resources reflecting this subtitle (and more):

- Hot-off-the-virtual presses - my article for World Economic Forum Agenda titled "8 Steps to Organizational \(Generative\) AI Resilience" in which I apply a practical Gen-AI lens to the model of organizational resilience I developed in my book Gloom to Boom: How Leaders Transform Risk into Resilience and Value (Routledge 2020).

- My latest column for Illuminem on "Planet Mission Critical: Finding Climate Trustworthy Leaders" - you might as well replace the word "Climate" for "Tech" or maybe even "Climate-Tech"...
- Join me on November 16 for the free virtual 10th Colloquium organized by The Good Governance Academy and introduced by Prof. Mervyn King, on "The risks and opportunities of Generative AI". I will be speaking alongside several great International panelists and facilitators - see below and register to attend here.
- A reminder of the recently launched Diligent Institute's excellent new online certification program on "AI Ethics and Board Oversight" of which I am faculty. You can learn a lot more about it here or contact me directly for further information.
- An excellent piece by Spencer Stuart called "How Boards can Accelerate Their Learning Curve on AI and Cybersecurity" based on a governance roundtable I recently spoke at focused on the governance of cybersecurity and GenAI.

There's a lot more, and I mean a lot more, cooking but there's not enough space in this already busy newsletter so I will share more next month. In the meantime, be well!
